"N OF FREE DELIVERY ON PROMISES"

Inspector Black of the Postoffice Department Makes This Statement After Three Days in Bryan.

Postoffice Inspector H. H. Black, who came to Bryan last Tuesday night for the purpose of making an inspection with reference to establishing free mail delivery in the city of Bryan, after spending three days in the city going over the situation, left yesterday afternoon for Houston. The quoted line at the head of this article is the gist of a conversation had with Mr. Black just before he departed from the city. This gentleman went a little further in his conversation yesterday afternoon and stated he was well aware Bryan was entitled to free mail service in more than one sense of the word, but there were four things that would have to be done before the service was established by the government, namely: There will have to be more sidewalks, street signs will have to be erected, a systematic numbering system will have to be put into use and the houses numbered and private mail receptacles will have to be put up. An Eagle reporter went to Mr. Black with the point blank question, "In your communication will you recommend the establishment of the service?" "That is rather a pointed question," said Mr. Black, and a direct answer was not given. However, the information sought was gotten hold of. The recommendation will be something like this: Provided by the first of November the walks are built and the other requirements are met the service will be started, but it will not be started just on the promise from the city council and the citizens that the work will be done. Mr. Black told of several cities much smaller than Bryan where the free service had been established and he said that in most every instance the city council had passed a compulsory sidewalk ordinance and forced the citizens to put in sidewalks. With the departure of the inspector it is a settled fact that unless somebody gets busy, and that at once, there will be no service by the time specified.

GIN DAMAGED BY FIRE.

The gin belonging to Lee Cortemella, in the Brazos Bottom, was put out of commission yesterday afternoon by fire. This gentleman was in the city this morning and said that it caught in a gin stand and that he thought from a spark produced by a nail in the cotton. The fire was extinguished very quickly with a long hose which he keeps for this purpose attached to a pump. Mr. Cortemella says that the damage was not over $100 and that he had no insurance. His business in the city today was to order from Dallas some extra parts to repair the damage and that by Monday noon he would be in full operation again.

OBSERVATIONS BY THE WAY

The surging crowd of farmers and cotton pickers showed up early today in the city. By 10 o'clock the streets were crowded and soon after the noon hour Main street was stocked with people hungry to spend their money. In the different dry goods stores in the city extra help was pressed into service where it was possible and lots of people had to wait hours to make their purchases. The goods are here as they have never been before and the merchants who bought so heavily this summer certainly made no mistake, as the people are here to buy the goods, and above everything else they have the cash in their hands.

Another new enterprise started in Bryan in the form of a flour mill that is up to the minute in every detail. This step shows how our little city is progressing. If you are a Bryan booster and a town builder give "Lawler's Best" a trial next week and if it proves worthy, which it no doubt will, help build Bryan by using Bryan-made products.

Had you noticed the many different bargains and the announcements of the new styles in The Eagle today by the different merchants in the city? Any time you think that Bryan is not filled with wide-awake business men you are mistaken. They have the goods and the stylish goods, they have the prices and they don't mind telling you about them either. Trade in Bryan, get your friends to come to Bryan. They can buy here everything that can be found in the large department stores in the biggest cities in the country.

Our fellowtownsman, Mr. James W. James, who owns a nice home on the corner of Washington avenue and 30th street, is doing much right now to make his already beautiful home more attractive. He is spending a neat little sum for concrete. A nice driveway is being put in, curb and gutter work is being placed around his lot and flower beds are being laid off with a concrete border. When this work is completed Mr. and Mrs. James will be right in line with a city style home.

With the free mail delivery hinging on the building of sidewalks in the residence districts, let's get busy right now and put them down. The city council has already passed an order for the erection of street signs and the house numbers and they will be ready. There is just a little more than thirty days left in which to get the walks down if the mail service is to be established according to schedule. Let's put the walks down without delay and, besides the free mail service, think of the advantage of getting out of the mud.

Monday week will bring to Bryan the boys and girls from the rural districts who have been doing much this year to reduce the high cost of living. Their displays will be well worth investigation and they should have the support of every citizen of the town. Don't forget to go around and take a look at their displays. Encourage them all that is possible and when the opportunity presents itself say something that will let them know that their work is appreciated.

Congratulations are in order for the county and city officers. A check forger operated for a while in the city yesterday morning, but was soon landed behind the bars. It is a good feeling to every one to know that Bryan has a set of officers that are always awake and on the job. It would be a hard matter for a man to violate the law in Brazos county and get away with it.
